

Incumbents re-elected, Hoover wins first seat

By Don Green

Incumbents John McCarthy and Ina Petokas and first-time candidate Frank Hoover outpolled nine other contenders Tuesday to win seats on the Upland City Council.

Following a computer malfunction that delayed vote tabulation 90 minutes, semi-official results posted at city hall showed McCarthy received 2,691 votes; Mrs. Petokas, 2,223, and Hoover, 1,811.

Nearly half — 48.8 percent — of Upland's voters made McCarthy one of their choices for a City Council seat. Mrs. Petokas drew 40.3 percent of the available votes and Hoover, 32.8 percent.

A representative of the San Bernardino County Registrar of Voters office said official results of the 22 precincts and 83 absentee ballots are expected by Monday.

About 30 percent — 5,520 of 18,190 — of Upland's registered voters cast ballots Tuesday.

Hoover, owner of PHD Plumbing in Chino, pulled a mild upset by receiving 146 more votes than runner-up Al Canestro, who wound up with 1,665 votes.

Canestro has served on the Upland Planning Commission for 11 years, including three years as chairman, and figured to be the best-known candidate outside the two incumbents in the large field.

He started devoting additional time to campaigning later than he anticipated because his retirement as an industrial engineer with an aerospace firm in El Segundo was delayed until February.

Hoover will replace Councilman Hal Bailin, who did not seek re-election.

Following Canestro in the balloting were Gregory Annigian with 1,305 votes; John Forsyth, 1,237; Frances Randau, 1,050;

Edward Donnelly, 1,022; Charles Merrill, 687; James Cummo Sr., 601; Michael Segaloff, 417, and Derek McFann, 296.

McCarthy, who serves as the mayor pro tem of the council, received the highest vote total of all council candidates for his third consecutive election.

However, he fell short of the record he set in 1974 for Upland council candidates when he received 3,602 votes.

While several candidates criticized city policies under the current council, Hoover was not one of them. He told members of the Upland Chamber of Commerce last month he rates Upland as No. 1 in "growth, management and city staff."

High school district rejects school issue

By Don Green

West End voters Tuesday convincingly rejected a measure to increase the property tax rate in the Chaffey Joint Union High School District for construction of a new high school in Rancho Cucamonga and renovation of Chaffey High School in Ontario.

Strong opposition to Measure C in Ontario, Upland and Montclair easily offset support in Rancho Cucamonga and the district's unincorporated areas, as the tax increase was defeated with 55.2 percent of ballots cast against it.

Semi-official results compiled from tallies by three cities and the San Bernardino County Registrar of Voters, which conducted the election in Rancho Cucamonga, showed 9,063 residents voted "yes" and 11,145 "no."

Measure C would have provided $23.2 million by increasing the district property tax rate a maximum of 41 cents during a 24-year span ending in the school year 2002-2003.

A breakdown of votes by cities shows: Ontario, 3,020 (37 percent) "yes," 5,115 "no"; Upland, 2,287 (43 percent) "yes," 3,036 "no"; Montclair, 589 (34 percent) "yes," 1,123 "no," and Rancho Cucamonga and unincorporated areas, 3,167 (63 percent) "yes," 1,871 "no."

Separate tallies for Rancho Cucamonga and the unincorporated areas were not available Wednesday, but 82 percent of the eligible voters for the category live in Rancho Cucamonga.

Turnout was 31.6 percent, with 20,208 of the district's 63,962 eligible voters casting ballots.

While voting was still taking place Tuesday, Superintendent Mike Dirksen said the district has no concrete plans for how to relieve overcrowding at Alta Loma High School if Measure C failed.

He said the board of trustees would have to assess the margin of defeat before determining whether the district would put the proposal for a high school before the voters again in June or November.

tors and other precinct workers supervised voting in 22 Upland precincts Tuesday, while other residents helped tabulate ballots at city hall Tuesday night. (Photo by Don Green)

Host families needed for program

Students learn about different cultures

By Don Green

What do students from Spain, Wisconsin and Upland have in common?

Javier Chasco of Spain and Lori Penkwitz of Wisconsin are exchange students this year at Upland High School through the American Field Service (AFS).

Doug Farmer, a senior at Upland High, traveled to Italy last summer as an AFS student.

Sue Goggin, who teaches social studies and acts as sponsor for the AFS chapter at Upland High, said the student exchange program began as the idea of some U.S. ambulance drivers who served in Europe during World War I.

The name itself dates back to the volunteer ambulance service started in 1914.

She said the drivers were interested in continuing the cultural exchange they took part in during the war.

The AFS exchange program began in 1946, and Mrs. Goggin estimated 44 nations now exchange students with the United States.

Chasco, 17, will complete an 11-month stay in Upland this July. While here he is the guest of the Alfred Woodman family.

He studied English a year in Spain before coming to Upland, and said his fluency has picked up during his stay.

Chasco, making his first visit to the United States, said the "caliber of life" in this country surprised him. He mentioned the number of cars and the structure of cities as examples of things he had not expected.

He noted school in the two countries is different. In Spain, the teachers move from classroom to classroom instead of the students shuttling every period, he said.

Chasco added that at Upland High, unlike Spain, students have a choice of classes and teachers.

He said he has overcome most of his early difficulties adjusting to learning in English. While here Chasco has found time to take in some sights: Disneyland, a concert by the rock group "Queen" at the Forum in Inglewood and a trip to Arizona during Christmas vacation.

Although a senior at Upland High, Chasco noted Spanish students have an extra year of learning at the high school level, which he will complete when he returns home.

Home is Pamplona, a city in northern Spain perhaps best known to Americans for its annual "running of the bulls" through city streets.

Chasco said he has not taken part in the spectacle, which he described as "really dangerous."

He plans to study science in college, possibly biology with an eye toward an eventual career in medicine.

Chasco said he has acquired a fondness for fast-food restaurants in the United States — something his native Spain lacks.

Mrs. Goggin said Miss Penkwitz and Farmer traveled under exchange programs different than the one that brought Chasco to Upland.

The domestic exchange program of AFS started about two years ago. The domestic exchanges last one semester or summer vacation, she said.

Miss Penkwitz, an 18-year-old senior from Port Washington, Wis., on Lake Michigan, came to Upland in January and will stay until shortly after graduation in June.

Miss Penkwitz, who lives with the Shelby Book family, is part of the first domestic exchange at Upland High.

She said she became interested in AFS through the club at her Wisconsin high school. In contrast to the open halls and detached buildings of Upland High, she said, her Wisconsin high school has connected buildings two and three stories high.

Miss Penkwitz, making her first visit to California, said she has enjoyed hiking in the mountains with girl friends most of all during her stay.

Farmer spent last summer in Italy as an AFS exchange student. He said he stayed one month at a camp in the Italian Alps learning about Alpine culture with students from all over Europe.

He lived with the family of an attorney in Trento, the capital of a region near the Italian border with Austria.

Farmer said he went sight-seeing in Italy with two other students for two months.

Noting he was not fluent in Italian, Farmer said AFS usually tries to place American students in a family with someone who speaks English.

Mrs. Goggin noted that in addition to the summer program Farmer participated in, American students also spent a year abroad under AFS.

The Upland High chapter is looking for family sponsors within the school's attendance boundaries to act as hosts next school year.

Mrs. Goggin said Upland families provide room and board for the visiting students and AFS provides them a spending allowance.

Applications are not limited to families with children in high school. Mrs. Goggin noted single adults are eligible and added that elderly couples have made some of the best hosts.

Families are not expected to act as "tourist agency for kids," Mrs. Goggin said. She commented that the selection committee is primarily looking for persons who are sensitive and eager to share in the cultural exchange.

Upland residents interested in finding out more about the exchange program or in filling out an application form may call Sandy Yoshikawa, 982-6525, by March 31.

Mrs. Goggin said the Upland High AFS chapter may nominate two of its students for every student who visits Upland.

She said the high school's nominees are selected on the basis of their grades, community involvement, how well they would adapt to new surroundings and how much they could gain from the exchange program.

While AFS provides some funding, American students are expected to contribute to their own expenses, Mrs. Goggin noted.

The Upland High chapter recently raised funds with a "white tag" sale, through which participating merchants offered discounts to those buying the tags.

Area legislators back property tax relief bill

By PETER WONG

The three state legislators who represent the West End voted for the property tax relief bill that cleared both houses of the Legislature last week.

One of them, Assemblyman Bill McVittie, hailed it as "permanent property tax relief" that can be paid for entirely by the state's $3 billion surplus.

"This is the best bill we can enact responsibly. We are responding to the legitimate cry of homeowners and renters for relief," McVittie, D-65th District.

"We are doing it without shifting or imposing new taxes, or jeopardizing the financing of state government in the future."

The bill was passed by the Assembly, 79-0, and by the Senate, 32-6. Assemblyman Terry Goggin, D-66th District, and Sen. Ruben S. Ayala, D-32nd District, also voted for the bill.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., signed the bill into law.

The bill's author was Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael. The bill was extensively rewritten in the Assembly.

The bill would do the following:

— Cut a homeowner's property tax bill by 30 percent.
— Increase the income tax credit for renters from $37 to $75.

— Provide for the state takeover of Medi-Cal and welfare costs that counties now pay for from property taxes. That will allow counties to cut their property tax rates.

— Set a limit on what local governments can collect in property taxes. That would be determined by the rate of inflation in government services, plus the value of new construction as a percentage of the property tax base.

The owner of a West End home valued at $50,000 can expect to have his property tax bill cut by an estimated $350 to $400 as a result of the legislation. That homeowner now pays roughly $1,200 to $1,300 annually in property taxes.

Senior citizen homeowners and renters with incomes of up to $13,000 will get additional tax relief as a result of the bill. The measure will provide relief up to $1,500 annually. It also removes the limit on the portion of a home's assessed valuation that is eligible for relief.

Later, McVittie said he believes the legislation will help head off the Jarvis-Gann property tax initiative, which is Proposition 13 on the June 6 ballot.

"I think people will be satisfied that the Legislature has enacted a realistic plan and will vote down the Jarvis initiative," McVittie said.

The proposition would limit property taxes to 1 percent of the value of homes and businesses. It would cut the property tax bills of homeowners and businesses by an estimated 60 percent.

McVittie said the legislation channels tax relief directly to those who need it, homeowners and renters, unlike Proposition 13.

Recently, Ayala said, "I have every confidence that we can expect a suitable property tax bill within the near future."

Ayala said any bill would be better than the Jarvis-Gann initiative.

If the state's voters approve Proposition 13, local governments — cities, counties and schools — would lose an estimated $7 billion in income. Sharply increased state income and sales taxes would make up the deficit.

"You might as well close up local government if that happens," Ayala said.

Before he was elected to the state Senate, Ayala served 19 years as a Chino school board member, Chino mayor and city council member and San Bernardino County supervisor.

Health News...

Dear Doctor:

Every so often, I can be sitting quietly or standing up, when a very sharp pain seems to shoot up from the middle of my back, and is gone in a few seconds. Also, when I stand for any length of time, such as at my kitchen counter, all the muscles in my neck seem to get stiff and ache right up through the back of my head.

I have suspected for some time that my back is out of shape. Do you think this is so? Thank you. R.M.G.

Dear R.M.G.:

Your type of back pain is a common complaint we hear from our patients and can prove to be a real problem if it is related to your spine and is not properly treated. Next time you are at the kitchen counter, I suggest you stand on a foam cushion which will help to cushion you against the hard floor.

Prolonged standing has proven to be a problem in all lines of work and particularly in industry. In the past, industrial leaders have helped to solve this by having employees stand on wooden running boards that act as shock absorbers. Some companies put rubber or vinyl mats on the floor beside machinery or work benches and many new commercial buildings are using special floor surfaces to accomplish the same purpose.

Based on your symptoms, you may have a structural problem that deserves professional attention. I would suggest that you arrange for a thorough Chiropractic examination to determine if this is indeed the case.

Honors

Three members the American Association of University Women, Ontario-Upland Branch, have had $500 in each of their names presented to the AAUW Educational Foundation Programs.

Liz Gallarini, Lois Rawle and Marian Stark were selected for the honor. Barbara Wishard, EFP committee chairman announced. The three were selected for their "work and dedication to our branch," the chairman said at a recent branch meeting.

The honorees will receive certificates and their names will be listed in a Named Gift Honoree booklet listing women honored throughout the United States. The foundation publishes the booklet yearly.

The first award of the EFP of $350 was made in 1888. The foundation has now grown to around $300,000 in awards. The funds raised are placed in trust for the following:

- (1) - Fellowships to American and international women who have completed doctoral work, but wish to complete dissertations or conduct post-doctoral work;
- (2) - Research and projects grants are awarded to branches for various projects, such as the Ontario-Upland Branch received a $300 grant for the Los Olivos Storytime Outreach project in 1977-78; and
- (3) - Special programs such as the AAUW Achievement Award, Recognition Award for Young Scholars, Annie J. Cannon Award in Astronomy and the African Educators Program.

Each AAUW branch supports the EFP, and in 22 1/2 years, the local women have raised around $20,500 for EFP, scholarships and branch projects.

The three women honored have worked on many projects for the local AAUW, served on committees and held offices in the branch.

San Antonio Dam safe, official says

The man who operates San Antonio Dam has been receiving telephone calls lately from people worried that the dam is about to break.

Some people even suspect it is now leaking.

But David Lester, who's supervised the $7 million dam above Upland for almost eight years, says they're wrong. The water they've seen trickling across roads close to the dam is run off from rain that has percolated down from hills at the base of the dam.

As the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers chief supervisor at San Antonio Dam, Lester gets all the phone calls from nervous homeowners below. He said he's had at least 15 calls this past weekend alone, and maybe 25 calls since the rains began in January.

He is under orders to refer all such calls to the public affairs desk of the Corps of Engineers' office in Los Angeles. And almost predictably, some people become suspicious when referred there.

Lester argues that the Los Angeles office has all the information on water levels through hourly taps to a computer readout, and the deskmen have more time to answer questions.

Besides the callers, Lester has seen hundreds more stop in the dirt pullouts above the dam, just off Mt. Baldy Road, to peer through a chain link fence at the waters.

"I've been hounded to death with calls from people living right here below the dam," said Lester. "Is it safe, is it cracked, is it leaking?"

He answered three phone calls in a row Monday from some wary people in Anaheim who said a map showed they were in the flood area directly downstream from the dam. Although they were more than 50 miles away, they were worried.

"They've run me ragged," sighed Lester.

The rumors began when people, either watching from backyards below the dam or from lookout points above, saw water apparently flowing in several small streams from the bottom of the dam's earthen face, theorized Lester.

He offers this proof that they are needlessly concerned:

— If the water were from a leak it would be muddy and bubbly, which it is not.

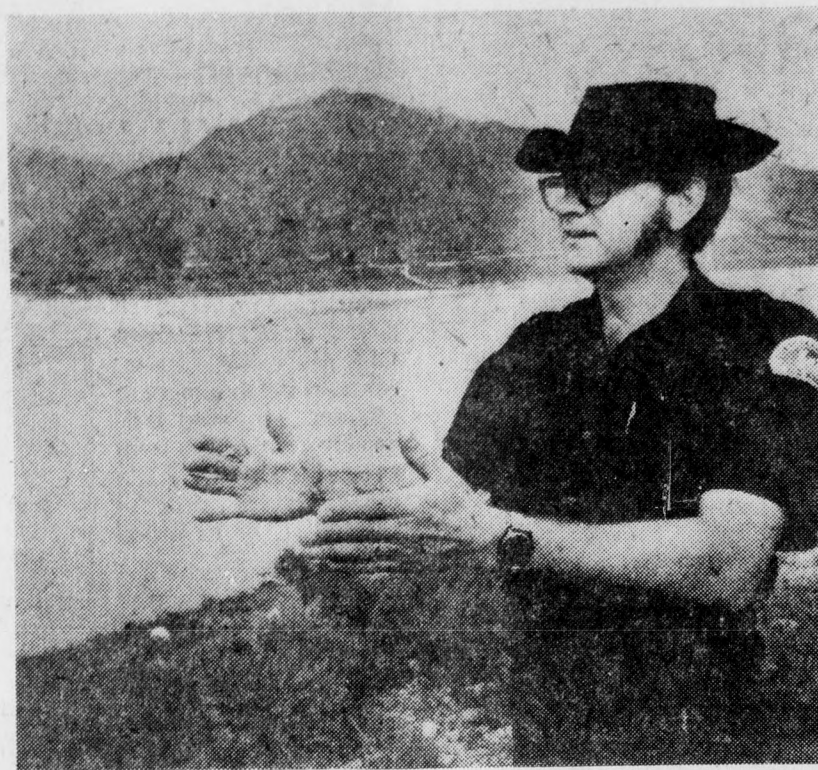

— The trickles are not new, and they always stop when the rain stops, even though the reservoir is full.

Lester also emphasized that the dam is now less than half full and still below the levels of the 1969 rains.

Yet, since the dam is normally bone dry, said Lester, "This is the fullest I've seen it."

His routine maintenance includes dumping large amounts of the reservoir water down the dam's spill gates into a concrete channel that drains to the Prado Dam south of Chino. Water continues on from there to the Pacific Ocean.

"If I hadn't discharged any water since Christmas I would have a full dam," Lester said.

NO PROBLEM — San Antonio Dam operator David Lester says that despite recent heavy rains the reservoir is less than half full. Since the last storm he has been releasing water steadily into a channel that carries mountain runoff to Prado Dam. Lester also discounts rumors that the dam is leaking and about to break.

Persistent talk of disaster is not new to San Antonio Dam, or most others. In 1969, said Lester, the City of Upland, the California Highway Patrol and the Corps of Engineers were barraged with calls from distraught citizens wanting to be assured about the dam's safety.

Built to control flash flooding, not store water, San Antonio Dam is checked repeatedly for safety by engineers, he said.

After any earth tremor, 20 to 30 Corps of Engineers specialists are sent to the dam to conduct a thorough inspection.

"It's no Boulder Dam, but I'm happy with it," said Lester.

Carter extends flood assistance for repairs

Local residents were among the beneficiaries of President Jimmy Carter's decision Monday to grant an "open end" extension of federal disaster relief to Southern California.

Damage due to the latest storm has been set in the millions of dollars in the West End alone.

Both public agencies and private individuals can apply for disaster relief aid.

City governments can receive money for road repairs and other storm-related damage after inspection visits by state and federal engineers.

Assistance available for residents include temporary housing, home repair funds, farm loans and individual aid grants of up to $5,000.

The San Bernardino County Office of Emergency Services reported today there are no current plans of establishing a disaster relief center in the West End.

A spokesperson for that office said a two-county center will operate, beginning Thursday, at the National Guard Armory, 2501 Fairmount St., Riverside, telephone number 684-5544.

Disaster relief information is also available toll-free from the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, (800) 252-9364.

The city of Upland has installed a hotline for homeowners or businessmen who suffered damage from the recent storms and flooding. The special number is 981-6868.

Richard Campana, San Bernardino County's assistant agriculture commissioner, said, "There has been a decrease in milk production due to cows discomfort from the water and being unable to rest on the ground."

He said the county's milk production, which is centered in Chino, dropped $3.4 million during January alone.

Testing program started

Cal State, San Bernardino, is participating in a statewide program to give entering college students a head start with academic credits.

The program, known as equivalency examinations, is a series of tests offered by the 19 campuses of the California State University and Colleges systems this spring.

The tests are so named because they give incoming students the opportunity to demonstrate knowledge of English, mathematics and science equivalent to that of college students who have completed basic courses in these fields. The end result is that qualified students can bypass certain courses and receive credit for them.

The English tests will be given on April 29 at Cal State, San Bernardino, and the other 18 campuses. However, applications to take the test must be filed by April 7.

Science and math tests will be administered on May 20 and have an April 28 application deadline.

Application forms for the test are available from high school counselors and the admissions office at Cal State, San Bernardino.

Does America need more government regulation? Or less?

You should know how your opinion compares with the views of people across the nation who were recently asked this question.

When we interviewed a broad section of Americans recently, over 40% said there should be more government regulation. Nearly 25% felt that there was already too much. Almost 20% said we have just about the right amount. Others had mixed views or no opinion.

You may agree or disagree. The important thing is that you have an opinion of your own. An informed opinion.

Over the years, we citizens of the United States are going to have to make many decisions that will have a basic effect on our American Economic System. Obviously, the more we all know about this system and how it works, the better we can decide what to preserve, what to change.

That's why we're offering a free booklet that explains the American Economic System. It is easy to read, and very interesting.

Every American ought to know what it says.

The American Economic System.
It's one of your basic freedoms.

In search of equal language

To a journalist, an em is a unit of type measurement. To Dr. Jeffrey J. Smith, professor emeritus of philosophy at Stanford University, an em is a boy ... and a girl; it is man ... and woman; he ... she ... and it.

In short, an em is an undifferentiated pronoun that Dr. Smith hopes will be the key to eliminate what he, and millions of others, consider sexism in the American language.

Instead of saying, "He is sick," Dr. Smith proposes, "Em is sick." Instead of "It is his or her responsibility," the future holds that it is "em's responsibility."

Certainly, it is an improvement over "his/her," "he/she" and "s/he" which have been popping up with maddening regularity in our language.

But, the use of "em" isn't a new concept in language — only in American language. A number of West African languages include the undifferentiated pronoun "i" (pronounced as long "e") in their language.

In Wes-Kos, the West African Pidgin English, for example, "i no be sick," ("He/She/It is not sick") is perfectly acceptable — and grammatical. The semantic context of the sentence determines whether it is referring to he, she, or it.

The use of the undifferentiated pronoun is also one of the major factors identifying American Black English in both the creoliza-tion and decreolization stages. A number of changes have been occurring in our American language — the language often known as Standard English. Most of these changes have been for the better.

The use of "Ms." as one example, is a most welcome change. If "Mr." designates a man — married or single — then one word, not two, would be appropriate to designate a woman.

There are, unfortunately, quite a number of newspapers and magazines that still use "Mrs." and the husband's name — as in Mrs. Harry Smith — thus depriving her one of the basic rights of any civilization — an identity separate from any other person's. In many instances, however, the woman, herself, proud to be her husband's wife, prefers the "Mrs." designation followed by her husband's name.

Some media believe that they are being "forward looking" by using "Ms. Betty Smith," for example, for the first mention, and "Ms. Smith" for subsequent mention. But, until such a time that "Betty" becomes a unisex name, even the "Ms." is redundant unless the newspaper, such as The New York Times, also uses "Mr." before a last name for subsequent mention.

Editors have recently become aware that "poetess" and "authoress" are just as sexist as "Jewess" and "Negress" are racist. Fortunately, "writer," "reporter," "editor," and "journalist" have been applied to both sexes.

We should be eternally grateful that there are no such creatures as "reporteresses," "editoresses," "writeresses," and "journalistesses" roaming our editorial halls.

Already in use, and certainly acceptable occupational designators, are "lettercarrier" and "police officer."

However, in the entertainment industry, "actor" and "actress" are just as strong designators today as they always have been. Thankfully, "director," "producer," "stage hand," "lighting director," and other "back stage" names are unisex.

Perhaps, through experimentation, we can come up with a more equitable language, one in which both men and women — radical feminists and male chauvinist pigs alike, can feel comfortable with, without feeling that someone — or many someones — are trying to force concepts down their throats. People cannot be forced to change attitudes just because language changes; the language must reflect the changing attitudes.

Nevertheless, many women — perhaps believing that language determines thought, but apparently doing little thinking on their own — believe that we need a total restructuring of our language.

Not just by calling a female author an author, but by depersonalizing — desexing — all language.

They have spotted their mountain and instead of living on it and cleaning it up, have decided to jump from it — taking mankind with them. And, under terms of their non-negotiable doctrine, not even mankind would be safe — they'd all be personkinds before the fatal plunge.

For years, writers and editors have struggled nobly, and justifiably, against encroachment by the radical feminists who want "chairperson" instead of "chairman" in publicity handouts. Instead of "councilwoman" or "congresswoman," which editors readily accept, many of the more radical feminists — apparently believing that it is more important to grab the public's attention by sharp blows rather than by skillful linguistic coordination, have tried passing off "councilperson" and "congressperson."

To these radicals of language, "person" is the new messiah, come to save them after years of oppression. If they were to have their way — and fortunately, many of the feminists are upset with the proposals — we would soon be faced with firepersons, policepersons, and businesspersons; there will be garbage persons, brakepersons, bagpersons, and forepersons.

The military, say some of the feminists on the fringe, would have to change and call their enlisted people "airpersons" and "seapersons."

And, if these "women-persons" had their way, American historians (referred to as "herstorians" if they are women) would probably be writing about Minutepersons at Lexington and Concord. They might even write about that great French painter Edouard Personet, who used to be Edouard Manet prior to radical awareness. Presumably, Claude Monet, also a brilliant 19th century painter, could retain rights to his name.

And, those herstorians would soon be writing personscripts for publishers — and would hold anyone submitting a manuscript to be in violation of the basic elements of human (now known as huperson) understanding.

Certainly, other changes would have to be made — personhole, for instance. Also, person-of-war, Isle of Person, and Personhatten, the second largest borough in New York City.

Not safe would be manage, manager, Mandarin, mandate, mandatory, mandible, maneuver, Manchura, manifest, manikin, Manila, manipulate, manners, manor, manta ray, and Maniboba.

Purists might try to claim that the stern "man-" could have come from "manos" Latin for "hand" — as in manicure — but this is a revolution, and hang the dissenters!

Horace Mann, Thomas Mann, and Katherine Mansfield — like Edouard Manet — would not be safe. And Dame Judith Evans would have to become Person Judith Evans.

In church — St. Agnes's, not St. John's — the radical feminists would have us all singing herzes from herzais, instead of hymns from hymnals.

Nevertheless, it is possible that the feminists would allow us to keep manslaughter, mania, and maniac — as tributes to man.

New law brings several changes

The Social Security Amendments of 1977 did more than increase Social Security taxes, according to Lorraine Brannen, district manager of the Social Security Administration in Pomona.

Brannen said the following provisions of these amendments have immediate effect:

— Increases the amount of money necessary to qualify for Social Security credit for Social Security benefits to $250 per quarter, up from $50 per quarter.

— Increases the amount of allowable earnings before deductions from Social Security checks are made because of work to $3,240 for those under age 65 and $4,000 for those over age 65.

— Restricts the number of months of retroactive payments in most cases.

— Calls for greater future reductions in payments when the payments are begun between age 62 and 65.

— Provides that husband's and widower's payments will be reduced by any government pensions that they may be due.

In addition the following changes will be effective in later years, Brannen continued:

— Effective January 1979, a new benefit formula will be applied which, while not lowering current checks, will control the increase in payments so that future payments will not increase as quickly as under prior laws.

— Effective January 1979, reduce the number of years a divorced wife over 62 or a divorced widow over age 60 must have been married to the worker, from 20 years to 10, in order to qualify for payments.

— Effective January 1979, remarriage of a widow or widower over age 60 will not reduce the survivor payments.

— Effective 1982 wife's and widow's payments will be reduced by the amount of pensions received from other government agencies. Brannen stated that more detailed information about the amendments is available by calling the Social Security General Information Center at 629-4021.

The Pomona Social Security Office is located at 445 E. Holt Avenue.

Economic facts show truth of women's financial status

Frank L. writes: "I've just been named to a task force dealing with women's issues and I confess I'm at sea right now. Can you give me some basic facts which need to be addressed that deeply concern women?"

We certainly can — the bread-and-butter issues which we are asked about almost daily. Here are a few of them:

— In California, a woman earns, on the average, 49 cents for every dollar earned by a man.

— Women, who are 40 percent of the labor force, are concentrated in low-paying occupations. Over half work in clerical, operative and service positions.

— Women are gaining on men in educational achievement. Yet, on the average a woman needs a college degree to equal the pay of a male eighth grade graduate.

— Divorce is creating a new poverty class. Families with female heads have 40 percent of the median income of families with male heads.

— More than half of all children living in poverty are in families headed by women. For black children, the proportion is two-thirds.

— Working wives now contribute nearly one-third of the family income. So there you have the basic economic and social facts that women are referring to when we insist upon equality. We are not talking about abstract ideas, but basic problems of survival that eventually affect most women.

L.S. of Santa Maria writes: "I've married a wonderful man, and I want to help insure financial security for both of us. Would you explain California's community property law? What is joint property?"

Good questions! If you explore the legal implications of California's community property law now you will have greater flexibility in managing your assets and avoiding problems later.

Prior to 1975, only the husband had the right to control and manage most of the community property. But revisions in the law changed that. Since January, 1975 either of you can act alone to manage most of your community property.

Generally, most property acquired after marriage is considered community property, unless you and your husband agree otherwise. This includes anything you buy, the labor of each of you, even if it's invested in a business owned separately by the other, and money received in most personal loans.

Separate property includes your holdings before you were married, the proceeds from that property, any gifts or inheritance property, even after marriage, and property given to a married woman before January 1, 1975.

You can, however, decide to own your property as joint tenants or as tenants in common. You should ask an attorney about the legal consequences of pooling your property, though. Your house is a good example of the kind of property you will want to consult an attorney about.

If you want more information on money management a recent series of Consumer Information Reports is available from Bank of America.

P.S. of Burbank writes: "Can you tell me how to go about locating my ex-husband so I can collect child support for my three children? I'm desperately in need of it."

We hear that complaint very often — and we are deeply sympathetic with the woman burdened with providing care and basic needs, often on a low salary, for her children.

You who have this problem can take heart. First, the laws of all states require both parents to support their children — it is a crime not to do so. The parent who violates a court order can face a whopping big felony charge. And both state and federal governments are cracking down on people who have children and then fail to support them. New laws have been passed to make it easier to collect support.

San Dimas Press; LaVerne Leader; The Bulletin; Upland News; Rancho Cucamonga Times; Montclair Tribune

A guide, "How to Collect Your Child Support and Alimony," based on these new laws, was recently compiled by Eileen Baris Luboff, a collection manager, and Constance L. Posner, a California attorney. It provides the best information we've seen on the subject.

It takes you through the mysterious work of private investigators, collectors and other professional searchers and makes the process of collecting support simple enough that you can do it yourself. You gather essential information about your ex-spouse that will advance you step by step on a trail leading to his whereabouts.

Legal terms in official documents such as your court orders are translated. You are introduced to methods of tracing people which put Sherlock Holmes to shame — through agencies such as the Department of Motor Vehicles, the county registrar of voters, state employment records, county and local records, credit bureaus, among others.

You can get the guide through Nolo Press, P.O.

Box 544, Occidental, CA 95465. You may also find it in your local library.

Panama Canal treaty to benefit United States

By Alan Cranston
I am convinced the public strongly favors the Panama Canal treaties now before the Senate. It is not true that the vast majority of Americans oppose the pacts.

The latest polls show just the opposite. Public opinion polls took a decisive turn-around once it became more widely understood that the treaties give the United States the right to defend and protect the canal, and to intervene militarily in the event of any threat to the waterway. The more people learn what's actually in the treaties, the greater the degree of support. A survey by NBC News and the Associated Press in January showed a 40-point spread in favor of the treaties. To the question: "Would you favor or oppose approval of the Panama Canal treaty if an amendment were added specifically giving the United States the right to intervene if the canal is threatened by attack?"

The response was 65 percent in favor, 25 percent opposed. A CBS-New York Times poll last October showed similar results. To the question: "Suppose you felt the treaties provided that the United States could always send in troops to keep the canal open to ships of all nations. Would you approve of the treaties?" 63 percent said yes and only 24 percent no.

A January Gallup Poll showed 45 percent in favor of the treaties and 42 percent opposed. And a Field Institute poll in California showed opposition had dropped to a 5-point margin in January — 46 percent — 41 percent against — as contrasted with a 14-point opposition margin — 49 percent — 35 percent against — last October. The treaties — as signed by President Carter Sept. 7, supplemented by a joint communiqué with General Omar Torrijos Oct. 14, and approved by the Panamanian people in their Oct. 23 plebiscite — give the United States the right to defend the canal after it is turned over to the Panamanians in the year 2000.

That right, along with the right of priority passage of U.S. warships in time of emergency, was further spelled out in an amendment proposed by Democratic majority leader Robert Byrd and Republican minority leader Howard Baker, and approved by the Foreign Relations Committee when it voted out the treaties for Senate consideration Jan. 30.

The poll that first created the impression of massive opposition to the treaties was taken in May 1977, four months before the treaties were even signed and their contents generally known. The poll didn't even mention the treaties. The poll merely asked if the respondent favored continued U.S. ownership and control of the canal or turning it over to the Panamanians, without stipulating any conditions. Naturally the answer was overwhelmingly in favor of continued U.S. ownership. The poll was conducted by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J. The vote was 78 percent for U.S. control, 8 percent for turning ownership and control over to Panama. The benefits of approving the treaties are:

- The treaties will vastly improve the prospect that the Panama Canal will remain secure, safe, neutral and open to our commercial and military ships — and the ships of all nations — for now and the indefinite future. Keeping the canal open must be our overriding consideration.
- We retain the right for priority passage of U.S. ships in time of emergency.
- We retain the right to defend the canal forever against any perceived threat from within or without.
- The best way to defend the canal against attack is to take steps to avert an attack in the first place. Approval of these treaties will remove provocation of an attack against the canal by local nationalists — the very kind of attack to which the canal is most vulnerable. We do not want the canal closed to commercial traffic for years because of guerrilla warfare in the jungles of Panama.

— Approval will right what all of Latin America has for generations perceived as a wrong, it will establish us as the "good neighbor" we have always wanted to be.

— Approval will improve our image and our relations with all the nations of the Third World who see in our armed presence in the Canal Zone a vestige of the detested colonialism that they rebelled against — the very colonialism we ourselves rebelled against in our own Revolution.

— Finally I believe these treaties will improve our relations — political, military and commercial — with all the nations of the world. Approval will show us to be a strong, self-confident nation capable of dealing fairly with a small, underdeveloped country. It will demonstrate to the world that we have the real, inner strength of the truly powerful — not the false bravado of the bully.

What would the U.S. lose

if the Senate rejects the treaties — or emasculates them with demeaning amendments that would compel the Panamanians to reject them out of national pride and self-respect?

We would increase the odds for domestic unrest that could imperil the peaceful passage of our ships.

We would increase the chances of a take over of the Panamanian government by right wing — or left wing — forces, thus further jeopardizing the canal.

We would raise the cost to us — in dollars and cents — in having to defend the canal against a disillusioned and possibly hostile populace.

There might be loss of life on both sides.

And finally we would lose that "decent respect for the opinions of mankind" that motivated our Declaration of Independence 200 years ago.

Cranston, a Democrat, represents California in the Senate.)

Artificial insemination aids childless couples

When a couple wants to have a child but the woman fails to become pregnant, artificial insemination can be used in many instances to achieve pregnancy. A physician places semen, either from the woman's husband or an anonymous donor, in the woman's vagina. This procedure is successful for about 75 percent of the women who use it.

The husband's semen can be used when the husband has a lower than normal sperm count and several samples of his semen, stored in a sperm bank, can be concentrated.

An anonymous donor's semen is used when the husband has no sperm or when he has a low count and the sperm do not survive the freezing and thawing necessary for sperm banking.

If both husband and wife have recessive genes that could cause hereditary defects in a child, donor semen can be selected carefully to avoid the defective gene. Donor insemination also may be used if an Rh negative woman has been sensitized to Rh positive cells and her husband is Rh positive.

If donated sperm is used, selection of the donor is very important. Every effort is made to select a donor who has no genetic diseases and who is as healthy and as intelligent as the husband. The donor must have excellent semen and be Rh compatible with the woman.

In selecting a donor for a particular couple, the donor's physical appearance and ethnic background are matched as closely as possible with the husband's. Neither husband nor wife is told the identity of the donor, and the donor is given no information about the use of his semen. Records associating a woman with a particular donor are kept to a minimum and usually are destroyed once she becomes pregnant.

California law recognizes the husband as the father of a child when his wife becomes pregnant by donor insemination. It is necessary only for the husband to recognize the child as his own, and he must agree to this before the couple begins a donor insemination program. The child's birth certificate gives no indication of how he or she was conceived.

To accomplish artificial insemination, the physician places the semen in the woman's vagina during an office visit timed to coincide with her ovulation. The method is similar to what a woman experiences during a gynecological examination except that the physician uses a syringe to place the semen on or near the uterine cervix, or places a plastic cup of semen directly on the cervix.

The semen may be fresh or it may have been frozen in a sperm bank. The procedure usually is performed twice during a menstrual cycle, but it may be performed more frequently if it is difficult to determine the time of ovulation.

Timing of ovulation is important because the female egg (ovum) lives only 24 hours, and the life span of sperm is just 48 hours. This allows only a few hours each month when pregnancy can be achieved. The time of ovulation can be determined by observing the woman's basal body temperature and examining her cervical mucus. At least two months of observation usually are required to establish the ovulation time.

Whether artificial insemination will be successful depends on the ability of the woman to become pregnant and on whether her physician can determine when she ovulates.

If a woman's ovulation is normal, if her fallopian tubes are open, and if the cervical mucus at the entrance of her womb allows sperm to pass through, chances are good that she will become pregnant. If she is not ovulating, if her tubes are blocked, or if the mucus kills the sperm, she will not become pregnant unless these conditions are corrected.

Most pregnancies achieved by artificial insemination occur during the first six months though pregnancies can occur after this length of time.

Tut exhibit in L.A. dazzles with mystery, magnificence

Tutankhamun is portrayed in the traditional role of a warrior returning from battle in this piece is made a sheet gold tinted red. It may be a buckle. Behind the king's chariot, the vulture and winged cobra goddesses of Upper and Lower Egypt protect him.

Fifty-five of the "Tut" artifacts are now on display at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art through June 15. Of the 55 objects on loan from the Cairo Museum — 55 in honor of the 55th anniversary of the discovery of the tomb — 22 have never before left Egypt.

Tutankhamun, King Tut, an Egyptian boy-king dead for more than 3,000 years, has stirred the fancy of millions of people in 1977 with his fabulous wealth and legend.

Since the discovery of Tutankhamun's tomb in 1922 by British archeologist Howard Carter, the pharaoh's treasures have been considered among the most important and spectacular archeological finds of the century.

Chief among these is the remarkable "mask," a solid gold funerary mask of Tutankhamun made of beaten and burnished gold and inlaid with carnelian, lapis lazuli, colored glass and quartz. The mask, placed on the king's mummified remains, is considered to be a true likeness of the youth.

Other objects on display include a wooden gilt statuette of the Goddess Selket, a gilded figure of Tutankhamun harpooning, a small gold shrine of superb craftsmanship depicting the king and queen at leisure, exquisite jewelry worn by the king and delicate alabaster and wood carvings.

The exhibit is arranged to give a sense of how the artifacts were found within the tomb. Visitors proceed from the Antechamber to the Annex, then through the Treasury and finally to the burial chamber where the exhibition culminates with the gold mask.

Adding to the exhibit are photomurals of pictures taken when the tomb was first excavated and quotes from archeologist Carter's diary recounting the discovery.

The quotes describing Carter's first encounters with Tutankhamun put into words what is felt 55 years later when seeing the exhibit.

His description upon entering the burial chamber reads:

"When, for the first time, one enters a room such as this, the sanctity of which has been inviolate for more than 30 centuries, a sense of reverence, if not fear is felt on the part of the intruder."

There is indeed a feeling of reverence in viewing the artifacts and trying to comprehend workmanship that is over 3,000 years old. It rivals, and in most cases, betters that of even modern-day craftsmen using modern tools. The king's treasures are still fit for only a king.

When Carter was asked if he saw anything in his first glimpse of the tomb's interior, he replied, "Yes, wonderful things."

One of these "wonderful things" is the gold statuette of the Goddess Selket. Her graceful figure, and three others not included in the exhibit, surrounded a gilded wooden shrine that housed the chest containing Tutankhamun's mummified internal organs. The goddesses' outstretched arms signify protection of the shrine.

Carter described the goddesses in his diary as "gracious figures with outstretched protective arms, so natural and lifelike in their pose, so pitiful and compassionate the expression upon their faces, that one felt almost sacrilege to look at them."

Carter spent almost 10 years searching for the tomb under the sponsorship of the fifth Earl of Carnarvon. When the earl wanted to abandon the search, Carter convinced him to finance another two-month dig in an unexplored area of the Valley of the Kings. On Nov. 26, 1922, in the light of flickering candles, the treasures of Tutankhamun were found.

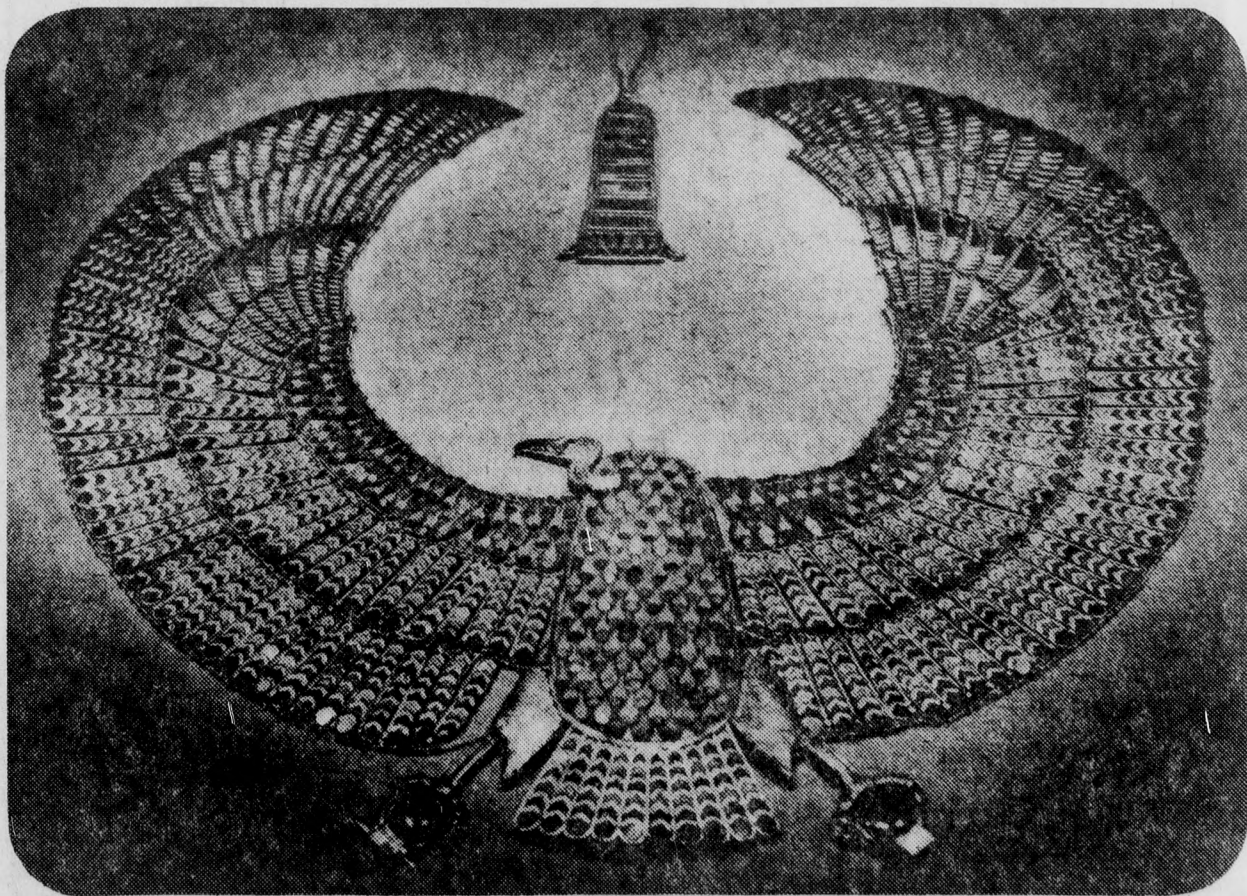

Arrangements to show the treasures in the United States were made in 1974 between Presidents Richard Nixon and Anwar Sadat to commemorate the U.S. Bicentennial.

Only seven cities, Washington D.C., Chicago, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Seattle, New York City and San Francisco will display the exhibit through 1979. In Los Angeles alone, more than 1.5 million people are expected to file past the treasure.

Tutankhamun's funerary mask, made of beaten and burnished gold, was placed directly over the bandaged face of the mummy. It is lifesize and appears to be a likeness of the king, verifiable from the mummy itself. The eyebrows and eyelids are made of lapis lazuli; the eyes are quartz and obsidian; the stripes in the royal headdress are blue glass, as is the inlay of the plaited false beard. The vulture and the cobra, side by side on the forehead, symbolize the king's sovereignty over Upper and Lower Egypt.

This flexible gold collar, composed of 250 inlaid segments, was placed around the neck of Tutankhamun's mummy. The collar is in the shape of the vulture goddess Nekhbet, the protector of Upper Egypt. In each claw, she grasps a shen, symbol of eternity.

The fighting animals carved on the jar (above) are vividly silhouetted against the colored pastes filling the background. The lion, bearing the cartouche of Tutankhamun, may symbolize the king. The heads of Asians and Africans projecting from the base symbolize his conquest of foreign lands. The gold ring (below) depicts the falcon-headed god Ra-Harakhty, who represents a fusion of cults of two gods and the unification of Upper and Lower Egypt.

Variety of works displayed at UCR

The work of Edward Beardsley, an artist who calls himself an "eccentric romantic," is being exhibited this month through March 17 at the Art Gallery, University of California, Riverside.

The artist's 20 drawings of "Monsieur Souris," a French mouse, as well as his watercolors and photographs will be on display Mondays through Fridays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission to the gallery is free.

Beardsley, a former resident of the West End and former art student at Chaffey College, is a native of Pomona. He received his bachelor of arts degree from California State University, Fullerton, and his master's in fine arts at Claremont Graduate School. Beardsley has been on the UCR staff since 1967 and was responsible for setting up the campus' nationally known camera and photography museums.

UCR's art department chairman and assistant to the chancellor for special projects, Beardsley completed the exhibition works in the last year during a sabbatical leave.

Beardsley's works hang in several private collections in the United States. He is a member of the International Council of Fine Arts Deans, served on the grants panel for the National Endowment for the Arts and is on the board of directors for the Riverside Arts Foundation.

He also has produced album cover designs for rock musicians such as Alice Cooper, Frank Zappa and Chris Darrow.

"I'm an eccentric romantic, a misfit," the artist says. "I'm always involved in something that has always been outside the mainstream. You have to give life something decent to imitate. Very little art produced today has any real style."

You and Your Pet

Keep a watch for fleas, ticks

By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.
Manager of Veterinary Services

Norden Laboratories

Fleas and ticks are exceptions to the rule that good things come in small packages. Their diminutive size often allows their numbers to build up unnoticed until the pet begins frenzied scratching.

Fleas are small wingless parasites well known for their jumping ability. The long, dark brown females generally gather on the tender skin at the base of the ears and around the neck. They feed on blood and secrete a toxic saliva that causes irritation and skin inflammation.

If you suspect your pet has fleas, part the hair at the neck. You may find fleas moving through the fur, or find droppings that look much like pepper. Fleas spend considerable time off the host animals, returning only to feed. Thus droppings may be the only sign of infestation.

Flea control means treating both the pet and its environment. Commercially prepared dusts and sprays applied to your pet's coat may kill or only stun the insects, and they then must be combed from the fur. Insecticidal shampoos are more effective on long-haired pets or those with a heavy infestation.

The pet's bedding and surrounding area must be treated with a disinfectant to kill adult fleas and eggs which will hatch and reinfest the animal. Other areas where your pet spends considerable amounts of time also need cleaning.

Rouder and larger than fleas, ticks also require a blood meal for reproduction. They frequent the same areas as fleas, but can be found anywhere on the body. The larval stage or "seed tick" is hardly larger than a small freckle. A mature dark brown female filled with blood may be half an inch or longer.

Most pets tolerate a few ticks but become irritated and restless as the numbers increase. Dogs especially can develop secondary skin infections where they try to rub or scratch the ticks away.

To rid your pet of ticks, use an approved insecticide rather than attempting to pull off the tick, which may be embedded in the skin. Pulling the tick free can be risky, because mouth parts or the head left in the skin can be painful and may result in a nasty infection.

Make certain the ticks you remove are destroyed. A carelessly discarded female tick can produce several hundred offspring, which may reinfest your dog.

There are several preventive measures you can take to minimize the flea and tick problem:

— Provide your pet with clean, pest-free sleeping quarters.

— Examine both cats and dogs regularly during flea and tick season, especially if the pet has been walking through a field or other grassy area.

— Don't wait for signs of extreme itching or scratching before using a flea or tick shampoo.

— Don't expect a flea or tick collar to completely control the problem. The collars lose their effectiveness when they get wet and should be replaced every few months. Pets wearing pest control collars should be checked regularly for signs of skin irritation from the chemicals in the collar.

In extreme situations, when your pet is overwrought with itching or scratching, see your veterinarian for professional treatment. An antipruritic ointment and a sedative will add greatly to your pet's comfort.

Medical costs can cut tax bill

Tax payers should make a thorough review of medical expenses that may reduce their tax liability.

Medical expenses can be deducted when you make payment for yourself, your spouse or for your dependent. If the dependent received over one-half of his or her support from you, you may still claim any medical expenses paid by you even though the dependent earned more than $750 during 1977. You may also deduct medical expenses paid for an individual for whom you meet the support test under a multiple support agreement.

Medical expense includes any amount paid for the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease. It also includes any amount paid for to affect any structure or function of the body. Transportation expenses essential to medical care are also proper medical expenses, as are insurance premiums covering medical care (including the amount withheld from Social Security payments for supplementary medical insurance).

The transportation costs that are deductible are out-of-pocket expenses such as bus fare, taxi fare or the cost of an ambulance. Amounts paid for the actual operating expense of a private auto are deductible to the extent the auto was used for transportation for medical care. Both the IRS and the state of California allow a standard mileage deduction of 7 cents a mile for medical transportation. In addition to the 7 cents a mile taxpayers may deduct parking fees and tolls.

In addition to payments to doctors, dentists, and hospitals, the following is a short listing of allowable medical expense: charges for medical care included in the tuition of a college or private school or in the life-care fee of a retirement home (provided a breakdown of the charges are included in the bill or is furnished separately), payments for acupuncture services, payments for wages (including the employer's share of Social Security taxes) for an attendant who provides nursing services (if other personal services such as housework are provided an apportionment must be made), artificial teeth, eyeglasses, hearing aids and their component parts, wheelchairs and other special equipment required by the handicapped.

If special equipment is installed in a home and it increases the value of the property the medical allowance is limited to the cost that exceeds the increase in value of the property. Also keep in mind that medicine and drugs do not include toiletries, cosmetics and similar preparations such as toothpaste and shaving cream but that vitamins may be included if prescribed by a physician.

Additionally, remember that medical expenses may only be deducted in the year actually paid and that no deduction is allowed for medical payments which were reimbursed.

(Prepared by members of the California Society of Certified Public Accountants.)

Self-concepts found biased

"Most people believe themselves more capable than they really are," says Claremont Men's College psychologist Laurie Larwood.

This outlook, she says, if extended to the organizational level, could eventually lead to "short-sighted and overly optimistic planning for the future." Larwood, assistant professor of psychology at CMC, and William Whittaker, assistant professor of marketing at the State University of New York, tested their hypothesis with two groups of management students and with a random sample of corporate presidents.

Their resulting article, "Managerial Myopia," which appeared last summer in the Journal of Applied Psychology, discloses their perception of a general, self-serving bias syndrome which often creates trouble in the process of corporate planning.

A shortened version of the article, "Marketing Myopia," will appear in the March issue of Human Behavior.

"We also find," Larwood said, "that not only business people are affected this way, but people in general have a self-concept that influences many aspects of their future planning."

For instance, through research into the massive swine flu inoculation program of 1972, she found most persons held biased beliefs that their own health was superior to others.

Another current self-serving bias study examines the use of energy, where she is finding "most people believe they use less electricity and water than they really do." A future study of earthquake insurance purchases is expected to show that those who do not buy the policies feel they will not be struck.

Larwood hopes through these studies to ultimately find ways to help predict business and marketing cycles and to offer some suggestions for public policy.

Relief for storm damage

Taxpayers can change 1977 returns

Immediate tax relief is available for many Southern California taxpayers who suffered property losses from severe storms during February and which included high tides, wave action, high winds, mud slides and flooding.

President Jimmy Carter has declared eight Southern California counties — including Los Angeles and San Bernardino — to be disaster areas as a result of those storms.

Tax law permits taxpayers in areas designated eligible for federal disaster assistance to deduct losses on either their tax return for the year in which the disaster occurred or on the previous year's return.

Losses to business property are generally deductible in full, while nonbusiness losses are deductible only in the amount that exceeds $100, the IRS said. Deductions are not allowed for the portion of any loss reimbursed or expected to be reimbursed by insurance or other compensation.

Individuals affected who have already filed their 1977 tax return can amend it by completing IRS form 1040X and submitting it to the agency. Corporate taxpayers should use Form 1120X.

Persons who have not yet filed their 1977 return can deduct the losses on either that form or on their return for 1978, which will be filed with the IRS in early 1979.

Taxpayers should compile lists of those items damaged or destroyed and determine the value immediately before and after the loss occurred. Before - and - after photos of the damaged property and judgments of appraisers are helpful in establishing the amount of loss.

Taxpayers who need help in preparing their returns or claiming refunds should contact the local IRS office. IRS personnel will also provide this help at disaster assistance centers.

Two helpful IRS booklets — Publication 547, "Tax Information on Disasters, Casualty Losses and Thefts," and Publication 584, "Workbook for Determining Your Disaster Loss" — are available free by calling the agency's forms - ordering telephone lines, (213) 572-7814 and toll free (800) 242-4585.

Use of natural gas drops 12 percent

Southern California's natural gas customers have cut their average usage a total of 12 percent over the past four years, and further significant conservation is expected by 1978, according to Southern California Gas Co.'s latest estimates.

Average annual consumption by residential, and those commercial and industrial customers who cannot switch to an alternate fuel dropped 23 billion cubic feet in 1977, or enough gas to supply 240,000 typical Southern California homes for a year.

Average annual residential use was down to 90,300 cubic feet of gas per customer in 1977, compared with an average annual use of about 94,000 cubic feet in 1976.

Among a wide variety of home energy conservation information programs, the gas company maintains a toll-free telephone hotline (1-800-252-9090) for consumers who need answers to their conservation questions. The hotline received more than 16,000 calls in 1977.

The City Council of the City of Rancho Cucamonga does ordain as follows:

SECTION ONE

Whenever in this ordinance the words or phrases hereinafter in this section defined are used, they shall have the respective meanings assigned to them in the following definitions (unless, in the given instance, the context wherein they are used shall clearly import a different meaning):

(b) The word "City" shall mean the City of Rancho Cucamonga, a municipal corporation of the State of California, in its present incorporated form or in any later reorganized, consolidated or reincorporated form;

(c) The word "streets" shall mean the public streets, ways, alleys and places as the same now or may hereafter exist within said City;

(d) The word "Engineer" shall mean the City Engineer of the City;

(e) The word "Gas" shall mean natural or manufactured gas, or a mixture of natural and manufactured gas;

(f) The phrase "Pipes and Appurtenances" shall mean pipe, pipeline, main, service, trap, vent, vault, manhole, meter, gauges, regulator, valve, conduit, appurtenance, attachment, appurtenance and any other property located or to be located in, upon, along, across, under or over the streets of the City, and used or useful in transmitting or distributing gas;

(g) The phrase "lay and use" shall mean to lay, construct, erect, install, operate, maintain, use, repair, replace, or remove.

SECTION TWO

That the right, privilege and franchise, subject to each and all of the terms and conditions contained in this ordinance, and pursuant to the provisions of Division 3, Chapter 2 of the Public Utilities Code of the State of California, known as the Franchise Act of 1937, be and the same is hereby granted to Southern California Gas Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California, herein referred to as the "Grantee," to lay and use pipes and appurtenances for transmitting and distributing gas for any and all purposes, under, along, across or upon the streets, of the City, for an indefinite term or period from and after the effective date hereof, that is to say, this franchise shall endure in full force and effect until the same shall, with the consent of the Public Utilities Commission of the State of California, be voluntarily surrendered or abandoned by its possessor, or until the State of California or some municipal or public corporation thereto duly authorized by law shall purchase by voluntary agreement or shall condemn and take under the power of eminent domain, all property actually used and useful in the exercise of this franchise, and situate within the territorial limits of the State, municipal or public corporation purchasing or condemning such property, or until this franchise shall be forfeited for non-compliance with its terms by the possessor thereof.

SECTION THREE

The Grantee shall pay to the City at the times hereinafter specified, in lawful money of the United States, a sum annually which shall be equivalent to two percent (2%) of the gross annual receipts of grantee arising from the use, operation or possession of said franchise; provided, however, that such payment shall in no event be less than one percent (1%) of the gross annual receipts of the grantee derived from the sale of gas within the limits of the City under this franchise.

The grantee of this franchise shall file with the Clerk of the City within three (3) months after the expiration of the calendar year, or fractional calendar year, following the date of the grant of this franchise, and within three (3) months after the expiration of each and every calendar year thereafter, a duly verified statement showing in detail the total gross receipts of the grantee, its successors or assigns, during the preceding calendar year, or such fractional calendar year, from the sale of the utility service within the City for which this franchise is granted. It shall be the duty of the grantee to pay to the City within fifteen (15) days after the time for filing such statement in lawful money of the United States, the specified percentage of its gross receipts for the calendar year, or such fractional calendar year, covered by such statement. Any neglect, omission or refusal by said grantee to file such verified statement, or to pay said percentage, at the times or in the manner hereinbefore provided, shall be grounds for the declaration of a forfeiture of this franchise and of all rights thereunder.

SECTION FOUR

This grant is made in lieu of all other franchises owned by the grantee, or by any successor of the grantee to any rights under this franchise, for transmitting and distributing gas within the limits of the City, as said limits now or may hereafter exist, and the acceptance of the franchise hereby granted shall operate as an abandonment of all such franchises within the limits of the City, as such limits now or may hereafter exist, in lieu of which this franchise is granted.

SECTION FIVE

The franchise granted hereunder shall not become effective until written acceptance thereof shall have been filed by the grantee thereof with the Clerk of the City. When so filed, such acceptance shall constitute a continuing agreement of the grantee that if and when the City shall thereafter annex or consolidate with additional territory, any and all franchise rights and privileges owned by the grantee therein shall likewise be deemed to be abandoned within the limits of such territory.

SECTION SIX

The franchise granted hereunder shall not in any way or to any extent impair or affect the right of the City to acquire the property of the grantee hereof either by purchase or through the exercise of the right of eminent domain, and nothing herein contained shall be construed to contract away or to modify or to abridge, either for a term or in perpetuity, the City's right of eminent domain in respect to the Grantee or any public utility. Nor shall this franchise ever be given any value before any court or other public authority in any proceeding of any character in excess of what is lawfully due the City, subject to the payment of the cost of the necessary publication and any other sum paid by it to the City therefor at the time of the acquisition thereof.

SECTION SEVEN

The grantee of this franchise shall

(a) construct, install and maintain all pipes and appurtenances in accordance with and in conformity with all of the ordinances, rules and regulations heretofore, or hereafter adopted by the legislative body of this City in the exercise of its police powers and not in conflict with the paramount authority of the State of California, and, as to State highways, subject to the provisions of general laws relating to the location and maintenance of such facilities.

(b) pay to the City, on demand, the cost of all repairs to public property made necessary by any operations of the grantee under this franchise;

(c) indemnify and hold harmless the City and its officers from any and all liability for damages proximately resulting from any operations under this franchise, and be liable to the City for all damages proximately resulting from the failure of said grantee well and faithfully to observe and perform each and every provision of this franchise and each and every provision of Division 3, Chapter 2 of the Public Utilities Code of the State of California; and

(d) remove or relocate, without expense to the City, any facilities installed, used and maintained under this franchise if and when made necessary by any lawful change of grade, alignment or width of any public street, way, alley or place, including the construction of any subway or viaduct by the City, subject to existing and future legislation regarding the Grantee's right to recover such removal or relocation expenses; and

(e) file with the legislative body of the City within thirty (30) days after any sale, transfer, assignment or lease of this franchise, or any part thereof, or of any of the rights or privileges granted thereby, written evidence of the same, certified thereto by the grantee of its duly authorized officers.

SECTION EIGHT

The Engineer shall have power to give the grantee such directions for the location of any pipes and appurtenances as may be reasonably necessary to avoid sewers, water pipes, conduits and other structures lawfully in place under the streets, and before the work of constructing any pipes and appurtenances is commenced, the grantee shall file with said Engineer plans showing the location thereof, which shall be subject to the approval of said Engineer (such approval not to be unreasonably withheld); and all such construction shall be subject to the inspection of said Engineer and done to his reasonable satisfaction. All street coverings or openings of traps, vaults, and manholes shall at all times be kept flush with the surface of the streets; provided, however, that vents for underground traps, vaults and manholes may extend above the surface of the streets when said vents are located in parkways, between the curb and the property line.

Where it is necessary to lay any underground pipes through, under or across any portion of a paved or macadamized street, the same, where practicable and economically reasonable shall be done by a tunnel or bore, so as not to disturb the foundation of such paved or macadamized street, and in the event that the same cannot be so done, such work shall be done under a permit to be granted by the Engineer upon application therefor.
